

The commercial art category includes product brochures, advertisements, and training materials. There is a tremendous need for presentation graphics for these uses, and computer imagery fits into many of them.